My Beloved Master
Revered Babuji Maharaj

Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, November 26, 2012 — 10:00 a.m.

Loving — to love at this level is the most valuable asset of a lifetime. Incarnations go by; they leave traces at the human level — temporary bonds that are more or less strong — but what truly stays on and develops the being on his path to the Eternal is this love. None of the many actions of life is committed in vain; some of them help seekers advance, reinforcing their commitment. A spiritual way like ours offers numerous possibilities, the extent of which many of our aspirants do not yet realise.

"Having a living Master is a very rare opportunity given to today's humans. Time is running out, hence the need to provide seekers with what is decisive for real progress in this area. Understanding the need to act accordingly and to devote oneself to this system for one's own sake testifies to some degree of wisdom. Many great and beautiful souls have understood the importance of this way. It is advancing and winning over hearts in its own way in order to lead them to the reality of real life. The latter is far beyond human concepts; regardless, our abhyasis feel in themselves the work being done, discreetly but effectively, over time. Certain human characteristics persist; they are attributes of past lives and much effort is required for one to be free of them. Thus is a being fulfilled in his quest for perfection. This challenge is very promising, as it uplifts the seeker and strengthens him in his quest.

"Down here, as elsewhere, nothing is simple. But efforts are important and, above all, counted and valued. Each one has his own journey and faith in the elevation of the soul. As for the goal to be reached, our way provides for it; its divine guide has the relevant power. This is how it is. May all be strengthened and enlightened."

Babuji Maharaj