Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, December 10, 2012 – 10:00 a.m.

The beauty of nature is an eternal wonder for an attentive person. All creation is a perfect achievement of such diversity. The wise person appreciates and is thankful for the uniqueness of what he or she is given. On this point, planet Earth is very privileged; it is not the same for all planets. Respect for nature is an act of faith and love offered to higher powers. An incarnation here below is an opportunity for humans to diversify their action – the spectrum is large; everyone tries to find their place, and for the most part to act as best they can. It is not always easy to face up to things, to find one's way in a hectic world that is not conducive to interiorisation. A fervent heart manages to achieve it. Such a call is the strongest; when a human being is touched by grace, what had seemed impossible can happen and thus change his or her life. Gradually, or sometimes very suddenly, light dawns within; one then discovers new facets of one's personality and life takes on a different direction in this area.

Everything can change when faith is great and its effects are deep. God has many resources; the incarnate Masters use them for the good of all. Everyone receives what they should receive. A fervent soul attracts grace incessantly; thus continues the cycle of incarnation through the ages. A strong and sincere appeal is always heard. Trials, whether physical or moral, are significant elements in a life. They enable each one to grasp the true meaning of an incarnation where nothing is easy for anyone, but all is in line with the consequences of past lives. An incarnation is an opportunity offered to each one so that his or her destiny can be realised.
