Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, December 10, 2012 — 10:00 a.m.

The beauty of nature is an eternal delight for an attentive person. All creation is a perfect achievement of such diversity. The wise man appreciates and is thankful for the uniqueness of what he is granted. On this point, planet Earth is very privileged, which is not the same for all planets. Respect for nature is an act of faith and love offered to higher powers. An incarnation here below is an opportunity for humans to diversify their action; the spectrum of options is very large. Everyone tries to find their place and for the most part to act as best they can. It is not always easy to face up to things, to find one's way in this hectic world that is not conducive to interiorisation. A fervent heart manages to achieve it. This call is the strongest; when a human being is touched by grace, what had seemed impossible can happen and thus change his life. Gradually, or sometimes very suddenly, light dawns upon him; he then discovers new facets of his personality and his life takes on a different direction in this area.

"Everything can change when faith is great, and its effects are deep. God has many resources which incarnate Masters use for everyone's good. Everyone receives what they should receive. A fervent soul attracts grace incessantly, thus continues the cycle of incarnation through the ages. A strong and sincere appeal is always heard. Whether they are physical or moral, tests are significant elements in a lifetime. They allow everyone to understand the true meaning of an incarnation where nothing is easy for anyone, but is in line with the consequences of past lives. An incarnation is an opportunity granted to everyone so that their destiny can be realised."
