Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, December 22, 2012 – 10:00 a.m.

See only the beautiful, the grand, for our Mission and the progress of these messages in people's hearts. As for these writings, they will defy time; they are not transitory here below. They will constitute a powerful teaching for the future, when very advanced minds will draw substantial energy from them. This world is evolving and will change significantly. In these pivotal times our Mission is positioning itself properly. May our abhyasis do the same and also develop a state of broadmindedness that is in line with changes of every kind. In this, surrender should prevail more than ever; advancing spiritually is a major asset. The vibrations of the being are changing; they are becoming refined and will therefore be more in tune with what will prevail here below. Everything is planned and arranged and will take place in due time. This world must change for the better; it cannot continue to deteriorate like this in ways that can modify it in an alarming manner.

May each one advance as best they can and devote themselves to what is important and constructive for their evolution. Here below, this passage is a part of the whole, which is not limited to one incarnation. Each incarnation offers an opportunity to improve; not understanding this is harmful and hinders the evolutionary process. Our aspirants are not saints, but we expect from them a minimum of effort and commitment for the sake of a satisfactory evolution. It's up to them to review some of their behaviours; everything – good and bad – is counted. It's up to each one to become aware of this and act accordingly.
