Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, December 23, 2012 — 10:00 a.m.

You are heard, my daughter. Aren't we always attentive to your heart? Therein is accomplished the miracle: the extraordinary contact with our hearts. This goes well beyond these lines and it foreshadows your future life, one that will be fulfilling in many respects, including spirituality of course. From life to life, the story is connected; one incarnation prepares for another — that's how it is. Blessed are those who are working towards the good in our Mission and who comply with the Master's decisions as well as his actions, meant to serve a far-reaching spiritual way to a high degree. Everything related to the journey of a being is recorded, memorised and counted; it is comforting to know this and to act with the full awareness of the good or bad that can be generated by events, as well as words. We are not moralists; we just want to draw the attention of our aspirants to the fact that such a commitment entails some degree of surrender in order to truly move towards the ultimate goal.

"Soul-searching is often necessary; a human being can frequently go astray, as egotistical reactions are often very harmful and can distort and undermine an entire journey. It's up to everyone to be vigilant and attentive to their practice as well as to thoughts that drive them, which can darken their life story. We want the best for our aspirants; we monitor them step by step, both the new and old aspirants. We bestow our attention on all of them and we expect them to achieve the best. Anything likely to affect their progress must be rejected. Is it not the goal of this process to always go towards that beauty which is conducive to realisation? May all achieve it."
