Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, December 28, 2012 – 10:00 a.m.

Have no fear, all is well; these messages achieve their objective and they are winning over hearts more and more. Everything is being done, and this has been so for a long time. Doesn't everything have its raison d'être?

Here, as elsewhere, the divine plans are being realised. From the smallest action to the largest, everything falls into place in due time, and people must adapt. Do they have a choice? It does not seem so, when it pertains to this supreme will. Regardless of what they do, human beings must adapt to this eternal logic here below, where many things will change – except for this aspect of the higher power. The Great Beings, of all times, have been guided and inspired to meet objectives that most often escape their own understanding. This world works like that, and it is not the only one that is orchestrated in this manner. The universe is magnificent, a system that is beyond human comprehension.

Neither do humans have the possibility of changing their own functioning; their physical bodies are, to a certain extent, still uncontrollable, despite the progress of science. Very often, surrender remains their last asset in many circumstances. Spiritual capital is given to each person. Not everyone uses it; they will need a number of incarnations to accept this unusual process. Many are advancing and they contribute to the vast divine plans concerning the overall evolution of humanity.

May all beings someday understand this necessity; our method is also geared towards that. We wish the best of success to everyone.
