Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, December 29, 2012 – 10:00 a.m.

Let yourself be carried away by this wave of love; it enchants your soul. Its treasures are well hidden, but they do not escape us and we make use of the benefits they generate. All these years of intense communion have left a fragrance of eternity in your soul. We will meet again, you can be sure. You will follow another path, different in its action but always so very focused on divine service. Thus are the souls who have been involved for a long time in this sublime epic. Everything will start over differently, but there, too, your soul will be fulfilled. Serving such a noble cause is a delight; trials at the human level only strengthen one's resolve to act. Many among our brothers and sisters are not spared in any area whatsoever, and yet they devote themselves fully and give their best. Anything done out of love ennobles the soul, but not only the soul – our Mission also benefits from it. The living and divine Master manages this giant ship on the waves of bliss; nothing is more rewarding for him than seeing beautiful souls who are advancing by his side to ensure the future of this noble Mission, which will be remembered – and for a very long time.

So many acts here below are derisory; certain people spend their lives attached to principles and actions that have no valid basis. We mean no criticism here; that is not what this is about. Committing oneself to a noble cause in service of the Divine is quite a different issue. There is an exhilarating action, to contribute to the spiritual upliftment of the world. There lies the purpose, great in its essence. May all our brothers and sisters rise above their differences on the human plane and proceed towards the noblest goal.

Blessings to all.
