Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, January 2, 2013 — 10:00 a.m.

History has always distorted historical facts, and the spiritual lives of Great Masters have not escaped the rule. Ample evidence testifies to it, but that is how it is; we can't do anything to change it. The same will apply to our path about which, over the centuries, a story will be made up in lieu of its actual history. We cannot preserve its history; humans are like that. May what is essential live on in future times; there will lie the success of this Mission in the world of humans.

"One day, on Earth, life will become simpler again and return to a more normal balance for living beings, humans, and also the whole of creation. The latter is not spared in these troubled times. Do humans realise what this so-called 'progress' generates in terms of disturbances? That is not our point in these messages, but we are not indifferent to the lives of human beings, far from it — we care about them at all levels. We want the best for all: balance and individual development — they facilitate a process like ours.

"Our brothers and sisters expect the best spiritually and we see to it that they achieve it. Their tenacity works wonders. Nothing can be achieved without effort; the laws are like that. Only results matter. Seeing a soul awakening to higher consciousness gives us so much joy, one whose subtlety is indescribable. This divine battle is endless; such is the movement of life, which has so many implications that they defy comprehension.

"All our brothers and sisters are on the right track and that makes us happy. May faith in our system and in us carry them constantly towards what is best."
