Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, February 8, 2013 – 10:00 a.m.

On a spiritual path, only the call of the heart truly motivates the aspirant. He or she feels an inner lack, a space which the intellect, or reason – whatever name it is given – cannot fill. For most of our brothers and sisters, this profound yearning continues from one incarnation to another. It sometimes comes from very far away and assumes a different form depending on the aspirant's personal evolution. Our aspirants are distinct from one another in this sense: the path they have already travelled and the latent potential at their disposal. When the time comes, that which is truly appropriate in this life for a planned progression presents itself. It is not always easy to understand this need; the country of birth and the environment of the being concerned do not always lend themselves to the call felt by the seeker. "What must be will be", as our Mission sufficiently demonstrates. It is making headway in the world and it transcends the difficulties inherent in the principles that are established by certain cultures. 'The way of the heart' knows no borders; it is universal and so very simple in principle. All human beings are equal at this level, that is to say, at the current evolutionary level of this world. A simple approach brings beings together and unites them on a path where simplicity does not create barriers between people.

Only the impact generated by this system matters; though it is extremely simple, it is nevertheless very effective in its subtlety. We are able to assess the results of this practice, and they are very convincing. We rejoice in that, and this motivates our action more than ever. The world of humans must move in the right direction – that of its spiritual evolution. This evolution, unlike Earthly goods, cannot at any level be taken away from humankind.

May these words encourage our aspirants to go ever further in their quest for the Divine.
