Whispers from The Brighter World

Tuesday, March 12, 2013 – 10:00 a.m.

Rise above this human baseness. Our Mission is not shielded from everything. It must engage with a world that is subject to its own turbulence. The progress of each one is precisely supported by what one must endure from certain acts unworthy of this spiritual path. Unfortunately, this is how things are.

May all our aspirants have faith in a better world where the human heart, in total freedom, can follow its path in a state of complete surrender, without fearing the egotistical reactions that are characteristic here below. In any event, the work of the Mission is bearing fruit. Alas, nothing is perfect, nor has anything been so on Earth thus far. Working for oneself and for the Mission testifies to one's good intentions; the field of action is broad and offers many possibilities. Master's guidance shows the way: those of God are unfathomable.

Spiritually speaking, everything seems simple: the seeker is guided towards what he or she did not believe possible. One day, after many 'battles', many personal struggles, the divine goal is reached. What kind of appreciation can manifest in the abhyasis? They are unable to measure the progress they have made. They are supported by their faith, perseverance and love, which are inspired by the guide, the Master who leads them to this level after they have cleared steps they did not believe they could reach. This is precisely the work of the incarnate Master. His field of action is broad; he can distinguish between human nature and spiritual potential and guide the being, particularly one who is seeking, to the desired goal.

When the soul calls out, it is heard. Sooner or later an opportunity presents itself and destiny manifests in its own way – one that is sometimes unexpected, but always rewarding and so very valuable for the seeker.

May all be guided and supported in their quest for the Divine; no one here tires of responding and acting so that the higher will may be accomplished.

This is how it is.
