Whispers from The Brighter World

What is more beautiful than a heart totally surrendered to the Divine! Therein is realised what every incarnate being aspires to, whether he is conscious or unconscious of the grace bestowed on him. A true mystic is able to overcome the grossness of this world by guarding against it as much as possible, in order to fully commit himself to his path. Various means are available to seekers; so many criteria are to be considered here. A real call always finds a way to express itself and to carry a heart to the Master who awaits it.

"Sahaj Marg is given to today's man to enable him to take a step for which he has been preparing himself — often for a long time, without really being aware of it. Life is full of surprises. Who has not experienced troubling times that enabled him to become aware of his own reality. Whatever happens, events and tests are milestones in one's life and are often constructive. Everything actually has its raison d'être. Can a path free of difficulties make man aware of his true destiny? Most realise this fragility, as they are caught in the turmoil of everyday life.

"Following a spiritual way testifies to a deep motivation, in part supported by these considerations. A seeking heart always manages to come forth, even if the environment and the circumstances are not especially favourable.

"Happy are the beings whose innermost aspirations are fulfilled; they achieve that which many of them, for a number of reasons, are not even aware of. Our abhyasis are on the way, the right way, since we can see such results from here, and it fills us with the utmost joy. Our love to all those who call for it, as well as our constant support."
