Whispers from The Brighter World

Plunging into oneself like this, is it not magical! This ritual is the blessed moment when the soul is in ecstasy; it wins over hearts in the most beautiful manner. Is there anything more beautiful, more intoxicating, than this mystical union with the inner Master, established within and resulting from a process that can lead to this level!

"These moments are precious in a life in which the whole space is dominated by materiality. A being who is inspired and motivated on his path knows how to balance things and sets aside the necessary time in a day to attend to his most subtle needs — ones that produce noble effects. 'Blessed are the pure in heart, they shall see the light,' so was it said. May that inner light dawn upon each of our aspirants and lead them on that unique path to enlightenment.

"A spiritual process like ours requires personal commitment and eagerness to move towards a noble goal: that place reserved for motivated beings who are ready to win this sacred space. Achieving the goal is a rare opportunity offered to the seeker who is imbued with great fervour towards the incarnate Master, the custodian of the necessary powers for this achievement. Anything is possible; God is great, and mighty are the Great Beings who are incarnate and vested with such a mission. In this area, everything is a mystery to humans. The divine laws are unfathomable to them. Only the results that are achieved matter; there lies the objective for a motivated seeker.

"All our aspirants are monitored and supported in their quest for the Divine. They should never doubt it; such is our commitment here. It is up to each one to experience and enjoy the effects of our commitment.

"This is how it is."
