Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, March 22, 2013 — 10:00 a.m.

Behind each being, life uncoils a long thread, the strength of which depends on one's karma. This thread can be resilient, in keeping with the deepest beliefs of the aspirant, when he is determined to organise his life according to those beliefs. Thus, when he gives the essential thing its rightful place, his life takes on its true meaning. While doing what it takes at the human level for himself and his circle, he also grants a special place to that which elevates his soul, and feeds it over time, enchanting it — there lies the secret of each being. Within oneself, in this reserved and unique space, something wonderful is achieved: the expansion of the soul and its progress towards the ultimate goal, one that will not disappoint. The staunch aspirant proceeds on this journey, determined and confident about this achievement. The journey followed by our faithful abhyasis testifies to their eagerness to move forward, whatever the circumstances. They are helped and supported. In its quest for the Divine, a fervent heart finds its way, one in which every passing day leads it to the best that is possible.

"What remains of an incarnation in this world? Not much, in truth. For the most famous people, there is a story, a monument. Sometimes, time erases even the least memory. A soul that is illuminated by love and beauty keeps all its achievements and pursues its heavenly journey in the beyond. There is no time to waste on Earth; moreover, time is measured, and no one escapes it — this law cannot be circumvented.

"Blessed are the pure in heart who have the best of intentions, as well as a strong faith in their Master and the powers that support him here below. An incarnation is short compared to eternity; may each of our aspirants truly become aware of the opportunity given to them to excel and to advance towards the ultimate goal. We help them all in our own manner, in both shadow and light – and that is worth mentioning here.

"Blessings from us all upon this Mission that is close to our hearts."
