Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, March 23, 2013 — 10:00 a.m.

These messages are imbued with grace, that which we infuse in you through this very special kind of writing. They are increasingly accepted and appreciated. The pure in heart will find substantial nourishment in them — thus the main objective is reached, one might say. This long cycle of messages is nearing completion. Hasn't everything been mentioned and suggested here in the context of these thousands of messages! They will remain the manna of our Mission, and they will keep producing an effect on those fervent hearts that are capable of perceiving their level of richness. The Mission is expanding around the world and will continue to do so. The difficult times ahead will not hold back this redeeming wave that can help humans on their spiritual journey. It is good to take stock, and in this circumstance we are doing the best for all.

"That which is not understood or accepted today will be so tomorrow. Since people's minds will have changed, all will admit the principle of communication with that which you call the beyond. There are different forms of channeling and, especially, different levels of consciousness to which all beings endowed with this faculty do not have access. This is worth considering here, as only some people, by special grace, have this access.

"These few details had to be provided to clarify the situation. In this matter, let us see only the beautiful, the grace that is being showered on our brothers and sisters in these blessed moments, where the interiorisation of each one facilitates a special understanding of these writings.

"All is well like this. May all our brothers and sisters enjoy this heavenly resource — they are highly blessed. This is how it is."
