Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, July 26, 2013 – 10:00 a.m.

It was a beautiful birth anniversary whose impact will be etched in people's hearts. It is good to see this progress of victorious love, the energy specific to our Mission, which is winning a reserved place. Blessed are those who benefit from it in this incarnation; they are thus adorned with rare glows that illuminate their path today and more so tomorrow. Doesn't everything have its raison d'être! We are able to see a certain evolution, although this world is still stagnating in the miasmas of negativity. The world was not built in a day and true values cannot easily prevail. Our action contributes to it without noticeable fanfare, and yet the work is being done – one must believe this and take full advantage of it. What is given to today's world prepares the future. What will it really be? The divine power is providing for it. Everything happens in due time; these laws are inescapable, and their flawless action is a model beyond the reach of human understanding.

Humans must be content to work on themselves, their tendencies, their lack of faith and respect before the Eternal, before the true values of this world, but not only this one. They would be baffled in the face of the multitude of planets they believe to be uninhabited. Each one has a way of life specific to the universal balance – a balance so complex that it escapes human understanding. Everything is for the best in the heavenly realms. May human beings make a big step towards self-knowledge and act accordingly.
