Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, July 31, 2013 – 10:00 a.m.

Seeing only the beautiful and the good in everyone is not always easy, but that is also a way to protect oneself when necessary. Human baseness is unavoidable; a perfect world will not come about overnight. Our aspirants should move forward and rid themselves of what is useless, along with the heaviness that comes with their respective baggage. Following a spiritual path in which cleaning takes place over time helps the seeker progress on the path of the heart. In this process, turbulence should be avoided. Love is and remains the great lord, capable of ennobling the soul. It is the guiding thread, that which leads abhyasis towards the Master, the guide who can preserve them and warn them against the whirlwinds of the ego and the damages it can generate.

Each one has a personal challenge to meet; it is up to everyone to commit themselves as necessary without delay. Nothing is obtained without effort; such a thing is not possible. The commitment of a fervent heart attracts grace and the attention of the hierarchy. Everything is counted; everything is known and recorded in the ledgers of time – the good and the bad alike. That is an inescapable divine law; it is and has always been a fact!

Everything possible is being done to help our faithful abhyasis, you can be sure, but some aspects of the human being had to be emphasised here once again. It is up to each one to make their own assessment and see where they really want to go; they are offered the opportunity on this path to win over a sacred space that is unique and irreplaceable.

May all move forward with faith and determination to pursue their process to the end.
