Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, August 7, 2013 – 10:00 a.m.

Move away from all these turbulences; humans keep creating them. Be at peace against all odds, like a boat that cuts through troubled waters to sail towards the goal. This world is still far from being an Eden, hence our ceaseless action which is proportional to the need. To dispel all this negativity, it is necessary to go through difficult phases. May the time come for a well-established peace on Earth, a time when humans will be able to fulfil themselves in harmony. A path like ours tends to create this climate; there is so much to accomplish here below. It is up to each one to make an effort and focus on themselves, meaning their weaknesses, and to act accordingly. This would be a satisfactory start, considering what remains to be done. Let us all work in this direction with conviction and determination so that the best can be achieved. One works for oneself, but also for the whole. In this way good is accomplished, generating an active principle that is beneficial for all. May our abhyasis become aware of this and apply a few rules that can help them make the difference called for in all circumstances and to act as best they can. This effort is commendable and beneficial. May this world always advance towards the best and towards mutual understanding. It is up to each one to take stock and act. Such is our perpetual wish. May the best be established on this Earth.
