Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, August 8, 2013 — 10:00 a.m.

Be at peace, dear soul. All is for the best under the sky of this beautiful Sahaj Marg Mission. As we have said time and again, it is advancing despite human turbulences. What is there that is perfect on Earth? No human being is. The key is to act in the right direction, towards the elevation of souls who are thirsty for the Divine. Despite appearances, there is no lack of them. Many are revealed over time, and they discover within themselves the need to advance towards the noblest goal.

"Since its inception, this world has been in a continuing process from which, one day, the best may emerge. This may seem utopian today, but what is positive is not necessarily measurable. Our Mission is growing, it is advancing, and there are beautiful souls moving in our wake — for us, these are matters of great significance. Blessed are those who are advancing in an incarnation and managing to move beyond ignorance. It all seems slow, but what do human beings know about the great divine plans and what those plans can generate? Humans are limited to their own condition, to the smallness of their perceptions. What do the great 'scientists' truly know? They try to understand, and sometimes they go astray; their criteria come from a human viewpoint and are thus limited. Some have been truly inspired and able to proclaim that the Earth is round, something that was not accepted in those days. The truth is not always easy to see but that is how it goes. This world is making progress against all odds; such is the aim of our action. Blessings to all."
