Whispers from The Brighter World

Tuesday, August 20, 2013 – 10:00 a.m.

Long is the way, but it is instructive when wisdom prevails over human failings. It is not easy to be rid of these, to follow a path with rigour, or at least with perseverance and a deep and sincere involvement. Therein lies the secret of success; this constant appeal is heard by the Master and he responds accordingly. Everything is perceived and recorded in the least detail. These concepts are beyond human understanding, but they exist nevertheless. There lies an aspect of humans known to the great mystics of both past and present. In this area, too, evolution is slow on Earth; humans are more interested in the progress of high technology than in their own potential, which is infinitely more subtle than they think. Much remains to be done on this Earth for the truth to finally emerge before the eyes of men and women – those who will actually want to see it and assimilate the great principles that have in all times been followed by an 'elite', one might say. How much longer will it take for people's minds to evolve! So many human beings remain quite far from these conditions which are necessary for life in its entirety. Moving in this direction is already a valuable achievement. Blessed are those beings who are open to the transcendence of the Spirit; they are forging a significant path in these times, which are times of despair for a great number of humans on this Earth where so many men and women are faced with great suffering and hardship. Let us all work towards a global elevation of consciousness by always acting for the best with hearts full of love.
