Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, August 30, 2013 — 10:00 am

The pace is slow on Earth; it takes time to grasp the true meaning of life. An approach to reality dawns upon the well-informed seeker, one who is committed to a spiritual way in which real work is being done on oneself. Engaging in such a process shows that the seeker has a potential that will allow the true self to be revealed. Life is made up of events, of numerous details, some of which shed light on the true potential of the incarnate being. From life to life, the quest continues, and when the soul is revealed in one of those lives, the real work begins. Various paths are taken, each of them shedding light on the true meaning of life. At some point, the awakening occurs and it completely changes the situation, indicating the best for the evolution of the seeker, who must now act as decisively as possible in order to reach the goal. Each life provides what the soul longs for. When the call is strong, it is heard so very clearly. It is so gratifying to see a being opening up to the divine splendour. Ours is a way that focuses on what is essential; our teaching operates accordingly and guides the seeker to the divine source — the source to which this unparalleled quest naturally leads.

"May each of our aspirants aim for the highest level possible and commit themselves accordingly. Everything is counted, and thus not one of the aspirations of a loving heart is lost. May all be strengthened and carried to the highest."
