Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, September 28, 2013 — 10:00 a.m.

Come and join us in this Eden of peace and love where you excel in tuning in to us. The path of life is very complicated, more so for some people than for others; no one really chooses their own path of life, whatever their level of evolution. Even the most highly evolved beings are not spared. This is inevitable, and examples abound. A spiritual journey allows one to put things into perspective and accept things as they are. In this, surrender is invaluable; without this deep-rooted approach, tests would be even more difficult to bear.

"Nothing [that happens in one's life] is useless — which is somewhat comforting. Practice helps, in any case, as long as it is done with enough confidence and real motivation. Love is rewarding; it embellishes the most inconsequential matters. It can transform one's life when it is deeply felt and when it goes beyond the material plane, captivating the soul. Engaging in a spiritual way helps one to learn how to channel this subtle energy that is capable of working wonders. Everything is possible here below when it is so desired by the higher powers. The reality of this statement has been sufficiently proven. What must be will be — in everything, and everywhere in this world. This is how it is. Surrendering to the divine power is the best option. Anything is possible when it is sufficiently motivated by love. May all advance with faith in their future, driven by the power of the living Master whose efficacy is highly supported by a very active hierarchy. May all be blessed."
