Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, February 7, 2014 — 10:00 a.m.

Life has never been easy on Earth, and this is not about to change; perfection does not exist here below, but perhaps one day it will come. Work in this direction offers a reassuring prospect, as nothing is impossible to the higher powers. No human being is spared, and the lives of the great Masters past and present have amply demonstrated this. Acceptance is the only positive response to all that life has in store, in the face of certain tests that recur from one incarnation to another for a specific purpose — the purpose of transcendence, and the elevation of the soul towards a more gratifying status. No effort is wasted; self-awareness, awareness of one's weaknesses and shortcomings, is a strength and an undeniable indication of progress. So many people think they are superior and able to lead the world — literally and figuratively. Humility is sovereign when it is based on real values and an approach to life that is respectful of divine laws. In truth, all is simple: doing one's best in all circumstances bears fruit, beyond any doubt. Everything, good or bad, is taken into account; we do not judge, but rather encourage our brothers and sisters to become aware of what they are and what they need to achieve in order to reach the goal. We follow one and all and assist as far as possible; nothing is without purpose. God is great and humanity can overcome its smallness if it really wishes to. Blessings to all."
