Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, February 14, 2014 — 10:00 a.m.

All these heartfelt letters give you a glimpse of the impact these writings have had on hearts — and this is only the beginning, you can believe me. Everything happens slowly in this world. As we have said several times, these messages are progressing at their own pace, but they will defy time — thus is it written. They should be highly respected, and following much turmoil, they will remain the hallmark of our Mission. As with everything else in this world, it takes time for such truths to find their real place. Happy are the hearts that respect the wishes and decisions of their Master; they will not regret it, since everything is written on the heavenly register.

"We try to give the best to our abhyasis, yet no one is spared here below. Sooner or later the rules of life manifest themselves, impressing their laws on each person's destiny. Blessed are they who transcend the material plane and everyday life — with all its restrictive aspects — to somehow escape these contingencies and rise towards a profound quest of the divine manifestation within themselves. Becoming aware of this power, of what it can bring about now and beyond this life, testifies to some degree of wisdom. Many of our abhyasis have already made very compelling progress; are they really aware of it! You cannot easily assess this achievement yourself; what matters is that you persevere and move forward against all odds towards the ultimate goal. In this area, more than in any other, one's actions are important. Everything is taken into account and contributes to the advancement of each one. The rules are inescapable; anything is possible when it is generated by divine grace. This is how it goes."
