Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, February 26, 2014 — 10:00 a.m.

Do not lose heart, my daughter; this world is what it is. Moreover, it will have to go through a difficult period in order to reach a major milestone. Nothing is easy for anyone here below. Where would the real motivation of an incarnation lie if this process did not lead to a specific and crucial goal for humanity? Much time is necessary for God's plans to fall into place; everything moves so slowly in this world. Even we have to adapt to this pace — a pace which is not our own. This concept of time is illusory, like everything here below, but we need to take it into account in its least detail. So many aspects of the laws governing life on Earth are ignored by humans. Some think they know everything, but their knowledge is still very rudimentary. It will take time and upheavals for a reality accessible to the greatest number to emerge. Many, many changes will occur here below, completely disrupting the way of life for incarnate beings.

"Working for one's own evolution and advancing spiritually is wise and saves valuable time. Everything is carefully taken into account; no effort is lost. Good and evil counterbalance one another in certain beings, and this can alleviate the dire effects of karma. The process proposed in our way leads to the best results when it is followed with sincerity and real commitment. Everything is implemented to promote the progress of each individual; the heart is full of treasures, though they are yet to be discovered and brought to light. Thus is the soul delighted, and it can access the best, by the grace of the Masters and the powers who carry them so that they can work for what is truly good. Blessings to all."
