Whispers from The Brighter World

Be at ease, and see only that which is essential; you receive so many testimonies about the importance of these messages and the benefit they provide. Carry on for a little while longer — are these moments of contact not a true delight for your soul! Channelling at this level is a divine gift that benefits the whole Mission. We watch over this Mission constantly, and one day it will reach a peak which you cannot imagine today. We want the best for this way of the heart, so necessary for the fulfilment of the being. This spiritual practice is such a blessing in a mad world that no longer adheres to the most elementary laws. All this is distressing, but how to stop this insane race which will bring nothing good to the Earth? Happy are those who have the refuge of faith and who practise in a group like ours that benefits from an important transmission. Not everyone feels it, yet they do receive it and benefit on the human level from this invaluable egregore.

"An incarnation on Earth is a necessary stopover; it is granted to all, allowing each one to evolve and understand the underlying workings and rules. Nothing is done in vain, believe me — every step in a positive direction is revealing. One day the divine purpose will be achieved. We are not yet there, but on our path, everything is being done to complete that which already exists, thereby giving the Mission its final and fully structured scope. It is not always easy to solve problems. We must go beyond the resistances that somehow hinder the expansion of our Mission. We are seeing to it; all should rest assured, under our blessings."
