Whispers from The Brighter World

Tuesday, April 1, 2014 – 10:00 a.m.

The journey of messages is long; it will extend far in time. In the future, these messages will become an important testimony for people committed to this way of the heart – this heart that is so mysterious to human beings, so few of whom grasp its very special aspect as the centre point of their spiritual evolution. Science focuses on form, on matter, and here we focus on the spiritual aspect. The heart is a jewel whose richness humans do not imagine. It is characterised by a specific vibration in this very special register where our action takes place. Meditating on the heart is an image; reality goes far beyond this, in the meanders of the spirit where everything begins and ends. Life is a pulse, a temporary vibration included in this design where reincarnations follow one another for good reasons. This aspect is still so little known to humans, even though it determines each incarnation and justifies what each one must live and experience here below. The mystery of life is great. It manifests itself infinitely, beyond the realm of human knowledge. In the past, many have invented stories; humans need these representations to give themselves some sort of satisfactory answers. No human being can truly probe, in depth, the secrets of life as a whole – God is so great and humans so small.

In conclusion to all this, spiritual advancement is the truly positive aspect of this long and divinely orchestrated epic. A path like ours contributes to the evolution of humans in the real sense – namely, their elevation.
