Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, April 12, 2014 — 10:00 a.m.

Love lights the path; the true mystics refer to it and live it intensely. Are they really aware of its power? Granting it full attention opens the doors of bliss. It has all the powers, and graces are ascribed to it. Do abhyasis truly realise the might of this sacred power? Do they grant it utmost priority, that which is due even in a particularly busy life? All this is compatible; you just have to want this and to make room for that which is essential and which endures beyond this incarnation. A large refuge is available to seekers. Once they really find it, they are won over and they continue on their way with joy in their hearts.

"This heart, so poorly understood, whose effects are unique and extend well beyond this world — humans cannot understand all its subtleties, which have yet to be discovered to their full extent. The mystery of creation is, and will remain for a long time, inaccessible to humans. The important thing is to advance spiritually, to understand — as much as one can — the purpose for uniting with the Divine. Giving precedence to this unique quest fosters the advancement of the entity on its initiatory journey. All have this capability. They just have to want it and to develop love inwardly, love that sublimates the being and opens one up to a serenity that transcends everything. Love is and will remain the magic key. All possess it; one has only to know this and to understand love's subtlety. We wish this awakening for all. We are working accordingly."
