Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, April 13, 2014 – 10:00 a.m.

Sunday is supposed to be a time of tranquillity; may it be so for all our brothers and sisters carried away by the whirlwind of life. Meditations on this day are better attended, allowing for a comprehensive work that goes beyond the boundaries of our Mission. These messages benefit all those who, day by day, read and immerse themselves in them. Doesn't everything have its raison d'être! What we propose forms an effective whole, and nothing is to be neglected – each element has its importance. Love is the redeeming energy capable of carrying the subtle being to its highest level of vibration.

The egregore of our Mission is growing and being established over time, developing its power of action in the world. Many subtleties escape human beings. How to clearly define and explain what is not perceived here below and above all not recognised by the vast majority on this planet? Let us stick to what is essential for this Mission: the practice, faith in it and especially in the ability of the incarnate Master to accomplish what is needed. Our path has this privilege: an unprecedented transmission that will later transform itself, in some way increasing tremendously. This is quite heartening; our brothers and sisters have nothing to fear for the future – both the present and future hold much promise for their evolution. After them, everything will carry on in a different manner, but with extraordinary means that would truly amaze them today. These times of plenitude will come.

To all, the best.
