Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, May 3, 2014 – 10:00 a.m.

A curtain of darkness separates humans from the higher reality, hence the need in this world and in many circumstances to receive this special insight into what should be done here below. Our path does not escape the divine laws; a spiritual Master himself is guided by a hierarchy keen on ensuring that things work smoothly. This way cannot circumvent everything, as some experiences are necessary, and reality manifests itself sooner or later for the general good.

We have clarified the essential facts for the future of the Mission and its monitoring. This Mission will gradually integrate itself into the context of a world that is better adapted and more receptive to what is advocated by the higher powers. Humans, however evolved, cannot know or understand everything, especially in particular circumstances. Nothing is simple in this world of permanent illusion. We ourselves, while embodied, turned to this special guidance when it was required for the good of the Mission. Here, we are following the progress of the Mission step by step. Nothing is perfect here below, but all in all, everything is progressing as planned.

Many disturbances occur; they are inevitable in this world where true perfection does not exist. Perhaps perfection would be tedious for humans, who would then not need to struggle with their own nature. Nobody is perfect, not even the greatest; they too have their weaknesses, and this is worth considering. Each should do his or her best with a view to attaining that desired level.

To all, the best, with our special blessings.
