Whispers from The Brighter World

Sufferings are not in vain, as you know, and when they are accepted out of love, they are all the more productive. An incarnation is not a simple matter; it has so many surprises in store. Whether good or bad, they constitute a certain number of experiences, some of which are critical for accomplishing what is needed and for achieving the goal. Starting a true spiritual path brings certainties to light. Here more than elsewhere, everything counts, and for good reason.

"The fulfilment of the human being entails special work that is specifically meant to help him surpass the vibratory level of matter. That is the goal. Prayers and repetition are necessary, but the work on oneself as proposed here goes well beyond that. The spiritual Master's transmission allows one to accomplish lasting work at the material level which would otherwise be fleeting in its effects. Many aspects should be considered in such an approach, the importance of which abhyasis cannot grasp. They benefit from a whole framework that allows real progress, and that is the main point.

"Time is short here below — very short indeed. It should not be frittered away; instead, our abhyasis should make the most of what we offer them. Our wish is that the greatest number of people should benefit from this extraordinary method that is offered to today's human being and will also be suitable for that which lies in the future. Simple but effective, it will touch more and more hearts thirsty for the Divine in its most subtle manifestation, decisive for the evolution of humanity. Blessings to all."
