Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, May 9, 2014 – 10:00 a.m.

So many misconceptions have taken hold in this world. The day will come when they will be outdated and will give way to a reality beyond the current understanding of the human being. It's about time to allow for a real breakthrough. Everything will fall into place by force of circumstance, yet the way towards a broader understanding of phenomena is still far off. Faced with reality, human beings will have to adapt, and they will do so very well – it has always been so, from time immemorial. So many substantial changes have occurred – fortunately, we might say. Reverting to a very rudimentary life would be a severe test for all. Life on Earth is writing its own history, and it must go through phases of transformation necessary for human evolution. Perception of the Divine is still in its early stages; happy are those who engage in this process, as they save valuable time. The achievements that emerge from one life are carried over into the lives that follow, where they bear fruit as it suits the seeker.

It is heartening to see the growing and active number of our abhyasis who have understood the necessity of doing real work on themselves, supported and guided in this crucial phase of their progress by their spiritual Master's power of action. In this process, no effort is in vain; what is done bears fruit much more than is apparent. The determination of each one is necessary and productive for the Mission as a whole, which is widespread in the world and whose egregore is growing; while this growth is not measurable, the egregore is expanding and becoming stronger, shall we say. Blessed are the dedicated hearts; they are progressing beyond their expectations. This is how it is.
