Whispers from The Brighter World

The thread of this love is endless, and it does not break. It bears no resemblance to human love, which is more volatile and fragile. There are no words to describe this love that carries you here in this unparalleled ritual. This love is exceptional, resulting in an outcome that can be considered as extraordinary and will be remembered over time. It is a rare blessing for our Mission and for all those whose hearts are nourished as a result. Many understand the importance [of these messages] and are advancing as appropriate, carried by grace. This way is blessed, according to the higher will. When the time has come for a substantial transformation to happen here below, this way will have increasingly established itself.

"Suffering dispels evil. This fact is not easy to understand, but in this manner it is somehow redemptive. Such are the divine intentions — multi-faceted and, one might say, beyond human comprehension in all their subtlety. Everything has its raison d'être here below, and nothing is done without justification. Tests, as well as joys, have a hidden meaning and are to be accepted as best as possible, as they contribute to each person's inevitable fate. May our way help people more and more, allowing them to advance in accord with the major projects ahead.

"Each of these messages carries a special vibration; may all understand and take advantage of this as they should. An aspirant who loves his Master can do nothing less than trust and follow him with all the love possible. That is wisdom itself — this is how it is."
