Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, June 25, 2014 – 10:00 a.m.

We all have our own weaknesses. Being incarnate, it cannot be otherwise. No life is easy. Sooner or later trials come along, and we must face them, and prepare ourselves for them as best we can. The path of each one is unique; so many important aspects need to be considered. We inevitably come back to the spiritual aspect; taking a step in this direction is of valuable help. It does not protect one from everything – that is not possible – but it helps one put things into perspective and not lament one's fate. Any life is productive; whatever it may be, it adds another dimension to the subtle being when it is considered in terms of its positive aspects – those necessary for human evolution. A 'perfect' life would perhaps be monotonous over time, without the stimulation induced by the many hazards it holds in store.

Through its uprightness and commitment, a heart eager to love, to serve, is somehow protected against the multiple turbulences of an incarnation. A spiritual path brings about other perspectives and a real reason to commit oneself more and more to this long Earthly journey, where learning and growing stronger in the face of adversity is essential. Blessed are the pure of heart who have no other aspirations for their evolution apart from a real thirst for the Divine. Our path offers genuine opportunities; it does not promise miracles, but it brings seekers where it is suitable for their personal evolution, decisive for the elevation of their souls. The results obtained over time fill us with joy. Blessed are the sincere and fervent hearts; success awaits them, taking shape over time. Our action prepares it and grace provides it.
