Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, June 28, 2014 — 10:00 a.m.

So many things have been said over the past years, and yet we could go on for a long time given the great complexity of life and the diversity of human beings. Our comments have this specific feature: they are understood across the world, wherever they are awaited, and they touch hearts that are sensitive to their vibration. A precious thread connects the hearts of our aspirants; the vibration of this egregore is amplified in proportion to the number of our committed aspirants, wherever they can be found on Earth. We do not want to confuse people with these comments, but rather emphasise the specific energy that is being established on Earth as a result of the work that has been carried out over many years and that will continue to grow. May all become aware of this extraordinary power that is unfolding and will continue to operate for the good of all, quietly but more effectively than it would seem.

"Life has many mysteries, and our system is one of the major assets capable of helping all our abhyasis wherever they may be on this Earth. Nothing is hidden from us; we see people's hearts and their potential, and we focus on the essential thing, which is not necessarily what aspirants are looking for when it comes to strictly material concerns. In this area, what remains of an incarnation? Nothing, or very little. The profound transformation of the seeker is critical, and we are working towards it as is proper. A day will come when all our abhyasis will realise the progress they have made and commit themselves still more, even on other levels of consciousness. We do not want to shake people's beliefs, but the path of Sahaj Marg holds much promise; the goal lies there. Our unceasing blessings."
