Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, July 7, 2014 — 11:00 a.m.

Do our abhyasis know the principle of surrender? What Sahaj Marg will become in the future should not worry them. We mention upcoming changes and transformations that will take place in our Mission, but few of our abhyasis will witness them; much time will pass before then. Furthermore, everything is planned to the last detail and will take place as is proper for the good of the Mission and all our brothers and sisters. Why do they dwell so much on what will happen much later? Isn't the present the most important consideration — now, when all have so much to do personally to truly advance and prepare appropriately for their personal journey going forward? Interiorisation and scrupulous work should lead them to a higher level where light will naturally dawn upon them, without their stumbling over matters that have little bearing on them personally.

"All we can say here is that the essentials are in place; nothing is left out concerning the plans for the future, and likewise for our Mission, whose influence will spread throughout the world to an extent that you cannot imagine today. At present, darkness continues to limit people to old beliefs that are devoid of common sense, but a day will come when other perspectives will be considered. All is well, everyone can rest assured; they are so very blessed."
