Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, July 16, 2014 – 10:00 a.m.

Life is never easy, you know this first-hand. Whatever the social background, difficulties are there, and no one can get around them. An incarnation is an experience; many are needed to better grasp the reality of the subtle being. It often takes a great many incarnations for the path to become clearer and to bring about an inquiry sufficient to perfect what needs perfecting. Following a spiritual journey like ours is a precious help, since real work is performed on the sensitive points, thus accelerating the evolutionary process. One day, the divine goal is reached; another way then opens up to the seeker, who discovers it according to his or her profound aspirations and a real commitment.

All are followed, guided, and above all helped as appropriate; all our brothers and sisters are precious to our hearts. Everything is done in the course of time so that a sincere commitment bears fruit of exquisite flavour. The way of Sahaj Marg stands out in this: real work is accomplished which, over time, produces appreciable results.

The cycle of incarnations allows for multiple experiences, which are meant to lead humans to understand the true meaning of a life on Earth. Nothing is easy, ever. Acceptance – surrender to the Master, when this is the case – facilitates a sure progress; patience, humility and surrender open up vast horizons. Everything is possible. It only takes willingness and a strong aspiration for the Divine, and the best can happen – under the constant blessings of the Master, carried by the alliance of the Hierarchy in all its power of action. So it is.
