Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, July 31, 2014 – 10:00 a.m.

Enter the heart of silence, where everything is forgotten – the sorrows, the sufferings that pummel your life. Many of our brothers and sisters are on the same journey, painful in many respects. The only true refuge is a contact such as this one, where in these moments serenity prevails. This appeal soothes the soul, and the physical body benefits from it: its vibration changes, the pain is more bearable, and the heart rejoices. The mystic is bound to lead many such experiences; sooner or later, aspects of this extraordinary journey that are as yet unknown are revealed to the seeker. Going ever further into surrender with a sincere and ardent call can only lead to experiences like these. Inner peace and true serenity carry one well beyond this world onto shores promising in their effects. Love, the real love that is advocated here, leads to uncommon experiences. It is the safest and most suitable vector in this special circumstance. This love, divine in its essence, delights the soul. The ultimate goal, is it not this sacred conquest in which the whole being unites with the Ultimate?

Following a spiritual path is the best way to bring the being where it is most fitting for him or her. Few people understand it. Our brothers and sisters have this privilege: they are on their way, committed to a greater or lesser degree but going in the right direction, one that opens up to them the sacred doors that lead them to bliss. There lies true happiness, you can be sure. One day – we repeat it once again – the divine purpose will be achieved. All are enlightened and supported to the extent of their call.

Blessings to all.
