Whispers from The Brighter World

Regain serenity; as you know, the fullness is within you in this blessed place where the best is performed every day. You are the embodiment of rigour; steadfastness is necessary for these writings, and it is also required for the follow-up steps. These writings are important — we wish to emphasise it once again — and the future will prove the accuracy of these comments. We are vigilant on this point: discipline is required. Doesn't everything have its raison d'être?

"It is wise to comply with the [divine] laws — namely, those that do not deceive; it generates the best on Earth, where everything is increasingly adrift. This situation grieves us. What more can we do to help humans, and what are they doing themselves? Most of them are doing what they can, but nothing is ever simple here below where, more and more, the divine laws are circumvented.

"May our abhyasis as a whole support one another for the greater good and consider the importance of the path on which they are progressing. Commitment is important, as it generates the best. Life takes care of teaching one lessons; this cannot change in an era of transition that is preparing for the future — a future that is more conducive to human evolution, in a vibratory context that is more in line with that which we are planning for the good of humanity. Blessed are all our brothers and sisters who are truly committed to this way — it is unique, by divine grace. May all be strengthened and enlightened as is fitting; we wish them the best."
