Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, August 17, 2014 – 9:30 a.m.

Regain serenity; as you know, plenitude is within you in this blessed place where the best is accomplished every day. You are rigour itself; this regularity is necessary here, and it must be the same for the follow-up of these writings. They are important – we emphasise it once again – and the future will prove the accuracy of these words. We are vigilant on this point: rigour is required. Doesn't everything have its raison d'être?

Complying with the laws, those that do not deceive, is wise and generates the best on this Earth, where everything is increasingly adrift. This situation grieves us. What more can we do to help humans? What are they doing themselves? Most of them are doing what they can, but nothing is ever simple here below where, more and more, the divine laws are circumvented.

May our abhyasis as a whole support one another for the better and consider the importance of the path on which they are evolving. Commitment is important; it results in the best. Life takes care of giving lessons; this cannot change in an era of transition that is preparing a future – one that is more conducive to human evolution, in a vibratory context more in line with what we are planning for the good of this humanity.

Blessed are all our brothers and sisters who are truly committed to this path, unique among its kind, by divine grace. May all be strengthened and enlightened as is fitting; to them, we wish the best.
