Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, September 7, 2014 — 10:00 a.m.

We like these contacts. These daily messages connect us to your hearts. All who read them profit from a special energy, one that is beneficial to the many people who receive them in the appropriate way, with the openness of heart required for our work.

"There lies the mystery of life. Beyond appearances there exist laws, divine principles that still escape today's humanity. One day, a big step will be taken, and human beings will finally reach another level of consciousness. Blessed are those who are working in this direction and devoting a little time each day to their spiritual growth. In this way, they are conditioning themselves for the great changes that will prevail here below for a new humanity, one that has been regenerated and strengthened in the face of adversity.

"This world is going off course. So-called progress does not lead human beings where they need to be; material existence increasingly hides what is so very important to them. Are human beings any happier? It does not seem so. Often confused, they engage in pursuits that are unsuitable for their personal evolution.

"Blessed are those who cultivate within themselves an earnest aspiration for the Divine. They save valuable time and foster their personal growth. In the future, they will benefit from this growth more than they can imagine.

"May divine love halo the hearts of all our brothers and sisters who are involved in this beautiful way — one that brings progress in the domain of the victorious spirit. Special blessings to all."
