Everything that is done in this Mission has a purpose. Difficulties are necessary; it's up to each one to overcome them and to grow while getting round them as best as possible, without any rancour whatsoever. Difficulties enable human beings to grow — humans, who are so small in the face of adversity regardless of their power in this world. Easiness does not yield success, the success that is needed in this area in which it is not the rule. The divine power operates at levels that are inaccessible to humans, who are so small before the Eternal. Grace works in its own way and it sometimes resolves problems that seemed unsolvable.

"Our great and very dear son, your Master, is suffering — and this is not without purpose. His very high-level mission on Earth had to go through such a final step in order to reach the ultimate stage: the highest stage of human evolution. All is well for him in spite of appearances; he is highly blessed by the gods. His light is already dazzling the world, and so it will be for a long time. This is how it goes!"
