Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, January 15, 2015 — 10:00 a.m.

The events are following one after the other, and the 'sacred river' of Sahaj Marg follows its course as planned by the higher powers. Nothing is done without their goodwill — a human being is so small before them. Realising this is edifying; trying to ignore it is distressing.

"The passing of the torch in the Mission is taking place quite simply, one might say, while respecting all that must be complied with in the tradition of a spiritual way that is now well established in the world of humans. There is still much to do to uplift the Mission to the highest level. The grand building under construction [in Hyderabad] will become an important reference point, one that symbolises what the Mission has now come to represent in the lives of many human beings. Time is passing and minds are opening slowly, but what has to happen will happen.

"May all our brothers and sisters realise the importance of their commitment and the possibility, through Sahaj Marg, of making progress in their current incarnation. It is up to them to seize this opportunity; they will not regret it. When the time of assessment has come, their balance will not be negative since they are being offered a space of peace and harmony — one that is beyond human harassment and where they can rejuvenate and truly unite with the Divine, under our blessings."
