Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, February 6, 2015 – 10:00 a.m.

When will it come – the time for a perfect world when harmony prevails on Earth and human beings cast off what is useless and truly rise towards spirituality, for an unprecedented transformation on this Earth. To work in this direction is already a big step forward. Many ardent souls are searching for this path of the heart which, through its simplicity of approach, answers a real call emanating from the innermost depths of their beings. The true treasures of this system are not yet grasped in all their reality, nor is the potential it offers for reaching a highly satisfactory level of human evolution.

With time, everything will become clearer for our abhyasis; they will gradually discover the true richness of this path. In their current state of awakening, it cannot be otherwise for human beings. Let us prepare as best we can for what is to come. Imagining a perfect world, where spirituality carries committed beings towards the best that can be, seems an impossible dream, and yet we are working towards it. 'One day, the divine goal will be reached.'

We are not working in vain; our brothers and sisters who have left this world are discovering all the importance of their work here below. They do not regret it, and they would like to do even more if they were given the opportunity to return and begin this process again. A lifetime is very little when compared to eternity. The complexity of this world sometimes distracts from what is essential. The wise, however, seek their own path and eventually find it. They thus save precious time, which allows them to achieve their real objective – one that does not disappoint. There lies the salutary path capable of embellishing the heart of a human being.
