Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, February 26, 2015 – 9:30 a.m.

Each day is an experience to be lived and seen as such in order to best profit from it. Time is counted, nothing is insignificant – joys and sorrows are necessary to each one's journey. Everything has its raison d'être. Trials are difficult to go through, but they generate the best when accepted out of love. It is not easy to understand all these reasons. Only surrender allows for it; it is the faithful ally in this quest for the Divine where all these aspects are to be considered. Human beings are so small before this power that governs the world; its effects are inescapable. What would humanity be without these strict laws that are barely comprehensible to them? They are merely a modest link in this immense chain that escapes all reasoning.

Following a spiritual path sheds light on the way; it gives reference points and allows the channelling of a force that inhabits each human being and that many, alas, neglect. They do not see the need to go deeper into such laws; they are only focused on the material aspect, which in the end often brings them only disappointment. Blessed are the pure hearts, for they shall see the light. Many of our brothers and sisters are opening up to this splendour, thus giving a deeper meaning to their lives – therein lies the true richness of it. May all these sensitive souls attain the highest level of realisation; there lies our constant and productive action.
