Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, March 7, 2015 — 10:00 a.m.

Immerse yourself in us, in this privileged space in which your heart delights; there lies peace and harmony, which is so very lacking in this world that is troubled in more ways than one. This is where our action finds its place, operating where appropriate to meet a growing demand. So many living beings aspire for the Divine; many of them are not fully aware of it, as this concept escapes them, yet [this awareness] would grant real meaning to their lives. So much pain and disappointment must be overcome. Tests are part and parcel of the path. They allow one to better value the good and constructive aspects that arise for the success of an incarnation, for finding the path — one that opens up real prospects. They also help one understand why so many ordeals of every kind have to be endured.

"Plunging within oneself broadens one's horizons in a unique way. There, in that space, nothing is in vain. Repetitions in one's practice are very important; they build a sacred space where the entire being finds its true essence. Nothing is imposed, only suggested. When the subtle being is ready, it can start a process and appreciate its true path. That is how the human being operates. It often takes time to arrive at this conclusion: 'All is nothing, God is everything.' This is a short expression and yet it summarises the facts; in it lies the true meaning of life. It is only through many trials and experiences that human beings are able to define themselves with respect to this reality that is so very crucial. They don't become incarnate for the sake of pleasure; it is not excluded, but it is not the goal. Understanding this is wisdom itself, and progressing on the path of the heart is the best possible asset. It is up to each one to understand this and act accordingly.

"Blessings."
