Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, March 22, 2015 – 10:00 a.m.

Life is like a long river, sometimes agitated, sometimes tranquil. It is fed by the passing of time and the multiple aspects that characterise it. Advancing in knowledge, the one that concerns us here, is an essential asset indispensable for human evolution. Some beings are more able, better positioned than others to overcome the limits of materiality. They have within themselves this call that they don't always assess at its true value, but which manages to prevail. Thus the seeker finds his or her way. Sometimes, after some fruitless attempts, that which is planned presents itself and fulfils one's deepest aspirations. Numerous incarnations are sometimes necessary for the truth of this very important aspect to emerge. It should be considered a priority, which does not mean neglecting the stages of life on the material plane. Sooner or later the being's destiny becomes clearer, and it highlights the path to be followed here.

From life to life each one's story is written. Some people are more inspired and motivated than others to follow the path that is decisive for their personal evolution. It can take time and some trials for the truth to appear to human eyes, blinded by many aspects of this material world – one that is confused and negative in many respects. The mystic, on the other hand, manages to make sense of things and to respect the laws of karma in its daily complexity, setting aside some time necessary to the conquest of Spirit, sovereign in its positive aspects decisive for all.

May our brothers and sisters unite and move forward in the conquest of celestial bliss.
