Tuesday, August 3, 1999 - 8:00 a.m.

The Medium: "Babuji, this explosion on the moon, is it serious?"

Yes, insofar as there exist forms of life which your electronic microscopes cannot detect. Man is a high scale predator. He believes he is a unique species living on a planet, the only one inhabited. He is mistaken heavily and the consequence of this insane act is incalculable. The council of sages, which monitors this world, is concerned by that. How can this madness in making disastrous exploration and experiments be stopped?

"The Earth is dotted with nuclear power stations some of which are run-down and are capable of blowing up everything, of causing the oceans to overflow, of inducing polar reversal and other delights in store. You have raised a query, which I have answered, but that is something you know already. I do not want to frighten you; you had received inklings about these issues for a long time. The governments know it and do not change anything in their policy. They cannot backtrack although they know the situation in its terrifying reality.

"You, as citizens, you cannot change anything, nor feel guilty in the face of such an irrefutable fact. Demonstrating in the streets would not serve any purpose. It is a monstrous system, which will end by itself, after many useless upheavals.

"Energy can be found differently and simply, but time has not come as yet for that.

"You are using what these monsters have created and you cannot change anything; that is the way it goes."

Babuji