Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, April 22, 2015 — 10:00 a.m.

Every day, a surge of love carries you towards us here, and the ritual begins. The union of hearts creates an aura that is conducive to the expression of our souls, which are listening to incarnate beings. So many of these beings are suffering. Suffering can have different facets. Whose life is spared this? It is not possible; karma is inescapable, adorning each incarnation with benefits and multiple human experiences.

"Such are the divine laws — they have their reason for being, and the wise person advances in his or her own manner. When one accepts the guidance of a living spiritual Master, one saves valuable time. So many aspects are to be considered in this domain: purity of intention, commitment of heart, sincerity and — above all — love for the Master, who is supported by the hierarchy of his peers, attentive to each of our faithful abhyasis. There are many such abhyasis, and none of them is ignored; all benefit from our attention. What they are is known to us. We help them in the best way possible to move forward and to progress towards the goal, while divesting themselves of that which is useless. Good intentions abound; we appreciate them and make sure that the Mission grows to help the greatest number of brothers and sisters who are calling for the Divine. Our guidance saves them valuable time.

"To all the best, under our blessings."
