Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, May 13, 2015 – 10:00 a.m.

Let us continue for a little while, as much as will be possible. The repetitions here are not superfluous; they hit their target and produce the desired effects. Doesn't everything on this Earth repeat itself constantly? Nothing is accomplished otherwise. The most beautiful edifice is built day after day to arrive at the result: the goal to be attained. Over time, this spiritual path produces significant results. Perseverance is necessary; everything is earned here below, nothing is left to chance. Everything has its raison d'être – the good, the bad, as they are called here below. The divine laws have their own rules, they escape human understanding. The human being is so small before them. How could one understand all their subtlety, they are of such complexity.

We insist on this point. Human beings often rebel; they do not understand. We have all gone through such states. Interiorising oneself, returning to wisdom while trying to adapt, allows one to progress. Ordeals are taxing; sometimes they can appal and disrupt the entire being. Returning to oneself, to the depths of oneself – if possible with the greatest surrender – opens new perspectives and can transform a life. We see many brothers and sisters changing, adapting to circumstances. Surrender as advocated in our way is a strong point of the practice for the advancement of each one. Be that as it may, all are supported and assisted. We see to it in our manner, hence this necessity to let go.

Blessings to all.
