Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, July 3, 2015 — 10:00 a.m.

In ancient times, the words of spiritual Masters echoed among their disciples. Each disciple received them in his or her own manner and passed them on thereafter. That which was essential was memorised. Oral transmission lasted a very long time, until the teachings were disseminated by other means, in written form. Caught in the bustle of modern times, human beings are now less receptive than they once were. Their memory has limits, and this is offset by the current means at their disposal. The world is changing, but the goal remains the same. Isn't that what matters in life here below. How many people currently care about the course of their present incarnation? There is such a long way to go before human beings realise the purpose of their existence and the time allotted to them to carry out, in the best possible manner, that which is offered in this incarnation.

"A spiritual approach is productive. It leads aspirants to question their lives, their approach and the prospects spirituality offers to them to truly progress. We encourage our brothers and sisters so that they do not lose too much of this precious time. This achievement is important, you can be sure. A life does not end with life on this Earth, as many still believe. An incarnation is only a stage, an opportunity offered to each person for the self to be revealed. The road is long and difficult in many respects, but the best is also there and available to all who are willing to make the necessary effort for it. Time is short. It is up to each one to realise it and to ensure that each day adds a positive note to this epic, to this extraordinary spiritual journey offered to human beings of today in order to lead them to the goal.

"Special blessings to all."
